Idle Rumors of Cabinet Changes—The Rupture Between the President and Congress Postponed—Repudiation to be a Leading Feature of Future Politics.

WASHINGTON, January 14.

The election of Mr. Harlan, the Secretary of the Interior, to the United States Senate will create no vacancy in that department till March, 1867, and it is understood that Mr. Harlan will retain his post till that time. All rumors of Cabinet changes are idle. As to any open rupture between the President and his Cabinet, and between him and Congress, it appears to be indefinitely deferred. The President has already yielded much to the Radicals, and will be obliged to yield more. The key to the Radical policy may be found in the disunion speech of Senator Howe. If fifty-five representatives and twenty-two senators are admitted from the Southern States, there will be seventy-seven electoral votes for Johnson at the election in 1868. Therefore, the eleven "seceded States" are to be kept out of the Union, and governed as territories.

Some months ago, Mr. Dana, the United States District Attorney for Mississippi, a very able man, spoke in Boston, at a public meeting of merchants, capitalists, &c., on the subject of reconstruction. He there struck the key note of Northern policy, by announcing that, if the South were restored, the Federal public debt might be repudiated. There may be some grounds for it. If a Northern faction make repudiation an issue before the people and in Congress, they may become strong enough, with the aid of the Southern vote, to effect practical repudiation. Mr. Wendell Phillips has more than once, in his public speeches, declared that if the South would offer one-half of the amount of their own debt to members of Congress, they would carry a bill for the assumption of the whole debt. Failing in this, the Federal debt would be repudiated by the joint vote of the South and the Northern faction. It was reported that Governor Pierpont, in his altercation with the Commissioner of the Currency last fall, declared that Virginia would never pay a dollar of the Federal debt. But there are other grounds for the apprehension that repudiation will become a leading issue in future politics. It is reported, much to the consternation of some interests, that, in an influential quarter, the programme for a war against the debt is now being framed, and that financial moderation is thus to be arrayed, in the North and West, against political radicalism. Thus, the new faction is to say, if you will not restore the South, we will sink your capital; if you do restore, we will sink it, or overburden it by the assumption of the Confederate war debt.

When the financial bill now before the House shall come up for discussion, there will be developed a powerful interest in opposition to the provision inhibiting States, municipalities, &c., from taxing the future issues of United States bonds. One of the arguments against this provision will be that it will render repudiation popular. In many cities and towns the capitalists hold United States bonds to an amount greater than all the other town property. They are substantially exempted from taxation, which the tax payers will not tolerate. The bonds now issued are already exempted from taxation. But I learn from influential members, that the bondholders have been advised very earnestly to consent to State and town taxation upon them, in order to save the principal, and a portion of the interest.

Taxation of the bonds is a growing question, and it is a step towards repudiation. If the future issues of bonds are to be subjected to taxation, then the floating debt cannot be funded, as Mr. McCulloch says, at a rate of interest less than eight per cent—another step towards repudiation.

The Debate in Congress on the Statute of Limitations.

This matter came up in Congress on Tuesday last, on the memorial of the New York Chamber of Commerce, through Mr. Wilson, Chairman of Judiciary Committee, who said:

I am instructed by the Committee on the Judiciary to report back a memorial of the Chamber of Commerce of the city of New York, and to ask that the committee be discharged from its further consideration. I desire to state the reasons for the action of the committee. It is a memorial asking that the statute of limitations may be so amended as to suspend action during the time of the existence of the rebellion, in order that the citizens of the loyal States may not be barred of their right of action against debtors residing within the rebellious States. During the Thirty-eighth Congress I reported a bill from the Committee on the Judiciary, which passed both Houses and is now the law, and which reads as follows: "That whenever during the existence of the present rebellion any action, civil or criminal, shall accrue against any person who, by reason of resistance to the laws of the United States, or the interruption of the ordinary course of judicial proceedings, cannot be served with process for the commencement of such action on the arrest of such person, or whenever, after such action, civil or criminal, shall have accrued, such person cannot, by reason of such resistance of the laws, or such interruption of judicial proceedings, be arrested or served with process for the commencement of the action, the time during which such person shall so be beyond the reach of legal process, shall not be deemed or taken as any part of the time limited by law for the commencement of such action."

In the opinion of the Committee on the Judiciary, this act covers the ground embraced in this memorial of the Chamber of Commerce, so far as Congress has the power to respond to the prayer of the memorialists.

Mr. Conkling—I ask the Chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary to state to the House what, in his opinion, is the effect of the statute which he has read, in staying or keeping alive remedies in the State Courts of the rebellious States, in cases between the citizens of the State of New York, for example, and citizens residing in those States. I have my own views about it, and I doubt not he has his.

Mr. Wilson, of Ohio—The Committee are of opinion that the latter part of this statute is as broad as congressional enactments could provide.

Mr. Conkling—How broad is it. What is the effect of it?

Mr. Wilson, of Iowa—The language of the statute gives it better than any construction I can give. The time during which such person shall so be beyond the reach of legal process shall not be deemed or taken as any part of the time limited by law for the commencement of such action. The point, I believe, to which the gentleman seeks to direct my attention, is this: whether this statute will prevent the operation of the statutes of limitation of the States in relation to actions commenced in the State Courts. I am not prepared to say that it will go that far, nor was the committee prepared to say that we could provide by law that the statute of limitation in a State could be suspended in its operation upon actions brought in the State Courts by Congressional action. The remedy which seemed to be sought by the memorialists was this—that citizens residing, for instance, in the State of New York, having claims against persons residing in the State of South Carolina, might have their remedy in the courts of the United States without being barred by the statute of limitations in force during the existence of the rebellion. In other words, they want the statute of limitations suspended during the period of the rebellion. We think the law now does this. We did not specially consider the question as to the power of Congress to suspend the statutes of limitation of the particular States, and prevent their operation upon actions brought in the State courts, as distinguished from the courts of the United States held within those States. I think, however, and in this the committee concur, that where the action was brought in a United States court, this statute is broad enough to save the remedy, and reaches as far as we may safely go. I have merely called the attention of the House to this act for the purpose of calling the attention of the country to the existence of the statute which I have read, and which seems not to have been very generally noticed. I have nothing further to add. And I now move that the committee be discharged from the further consideration of the memorial, and that it be laid upon the table.

Coe's Super-Phosphate of Lime,

OR

BONE MANURE.

WARRANTED GENUINE.

BEING MADE OF THE BEST MATERIAL AND in the most approved manner, it is recommended to the public as superior to any other in the market. All who have used it speak of it in the highest terms of praise, and those engaged in its manufacture will continue their best endeavors to advance the high reputation which it has acquired.

We guarantee the Phosphate to be well manufaced, and recommend it in preference to any other artificial manure in the market. We consider it nearly equal to the best Peruvian Guano, although furnished at half the price.

Messrs B H. Allen & Co., the well known manufacturers of agricultural implements, say of it:

"We take pleasure in stating that we have sold E. F Coe's Super-Phosphate of Lime for four years—It has given universal satisfaction to our customers. We most cheerfully endorse it as an article worthy of the confidence of the public, an the purchaser may rely upon securing an article honestly and carefully manufactured.

"We would state that, after careful examination, we believe this Phosphate has been improved each year since its introduction in this market, and that it will continue to maintain its present high standing.

"Very respectfully,

IMPORTANT SALE.

ON WEDNESDAY, THE 24TH OF JANUARY, 1866, I shall offer for sale, my plantation in Bertie County, lying on the Roanoke River three miles from Hill's Ferry on said river, and six from the village of Woodville in Bertie County containing 2000 acres, more or less; 500 acres cleared and well adapted to the growth of cotton, corn, wheat, &c.

There is a very fine opportunity to make a large cotton crop on the plantation the next year, as there is compost enough ready made to manure nearly 100 acres. The plantation made in 1864, 43,000 pounds of lint cotton and 4,000 bushels of corn; and, with proper management, will do great deal better for the next year, as the most of the cotton land has had rest for the past two years A ver great advantage which this farm has is its convenience to transportation being only one mile to a good landing on the river, where there is a regular line of steamers to Norfolk weekly. In addition to the above, this is the only river farm in this portion of the county that has fire wood enough, conveniently for use; there is an abundance here, and timber of almost every kind, cypress, oak, hickory, ashe gum, &c. Lumber dealers would do well to examine the land before the day of sale.

There are about 400 or 500 acres on this tract uncleared, which affords a fine range for hogs, and a free access to numberless acres of uncultivated lands renders it very profitable for the raising of cattle, colts, &c.

The improvements consist of a gin house and cotton screw, overseer's house, cabins enough for 25 or 30 laborers, corn barns, &c. At the same time and place, I shall sell 200 or 300 barrells of corn, fodder, mules, horses, hogs, farming utensils &c

Terms for the land: one third cash, the balance in two equal instalments, payable respectively in 12 and 18 months, and title withheld until payments made. For the perishable property, cash.

For any further particulars, address the subscriber at Enfield, Halifax county, N. C.

NOTICE.

BY VIRTUE OF A DECREE OF THE COURT OF Pleas and Quarter Sessions of Craven county, December Term, 1865, I will sell, at Public Sale, to the highest bidder, on the 24th day of January next, the EGYPT PLANTATION, belonging to the Estate of Benj. F. Biddle, deceased, containing 1,300 acres.

It is situated on the South side of Neuse river, and immediately on the river, 20 miles above Newbern, and is one of the best farms on the river for the production of Cotton, Corn, Peas, and other crops usually grown in this section of the State.

A credit of 12, 18 and 24 months will be given, and bonds with satisfactory security required. The sale will be made at the farm.

SAM'L L. BIDDLE,
Adm'r of Ben'j. F. Biddle, deceased.

Dec 19. 112. tds.

Select School.

MISS M. MITCHELL AND MRS. E. H. GRANT, Propose receiving into their family, as pupils, a few young ladies. Terms made known on application by letter or otherwise. The next session will commence January 15th, 1866.

Chapel Hill, Nov. 11-81 tf.

COOKE'S HOTEL

IS open, and those who are travelling and wish comfortable quarters and good eating, stop at Cooke's. My terms will be as moderate as possible for the times. You will always find conveyance at the depot to take you to either of the Hotels in this City; but be sure to inquire for Cooke's, where you will get good lodging, good eating, mineral water to drink, and a pipe to smoke if you wish it.

I will be prepared to accommodate 15 or 20 members of the approaching Convention.

GEO. T. COOKE.

THE DAILY SENTINEL.

WM. E. PELL,
SEATON GALES, } Editors.

Thursday, January 18, 1866.

OUR TERMS.

THE SENTINEL is issued every morning (Sunday excepted) at the following rates:

For Daily, per year,	$10 0
" six months,	5 00
" one month,	1 00
" two months	2 00
Semi-Weekly per year,	5 00
Weekly per year,	3 00

Our terms are invariably in advance. The Weekly and Semi-weekly will be issued about the first of January. Money may be sent us by the Rail Road conductors or the Express Companies.

THE PEOPLE must be trusted with their Government, and if trusted, my opinion is that they will act in good faith, and restore their former constitutional relations with all the States composing the Union.—Andrew Johnson's Letter to Gov. Sharkey, of Mississippi.

Personal.

The official duties of the Associate Editor, as Clerk of the House of Commons, will preclude his active connection with the Sentinel during the session of the Legislature. At its expiration, he will resume the association which, thus far, has been so pleasantly conducted.

Old Subscribers.

We reluctantly discontinue the Daily Sentinel to a number of our friends, for the reason that we have not heard from them in any way. The amount due us we need much, and the high prices of paper and labor compel us to reduce our list, except to prompt paying subscribers. We shall be glad to replace the names of all at an early day.

Weekly Sentinel.

We shall issue the Weekly Sentinel next week. The delay in issuing it has been occasioned by various causes.

The Legislature.

This body assembles in this City, to-day. There is, doubtless, a quorum already in attendance.

We have made the necessary arrangements for furnishing full and accurate reports of the proceedings in the two Houses.

Members desiring the Sentinel for themselves, or any of their constituents, are requested to hand the names and money to the Principal Clerks of either House.

Supreme Court.

We are gratified to learn that the Judges of this Court have, as we supposed they would, re-appointed Edmund B. Freeman, Esq., as its Clerk. Mr. Freeman is an old public servant, who has served the people in many capacities, and served them well and faithfully in all. We could pay him no higher compliment.

James Litchford, Esq., was, at the same time, re-elected Marshall of the Court, and Oliver H. Perry Librarian,—a merited tribute to excellent officers.

The following gentlemen, in addition to those named on yesterday, have been admitted to practice in the County Courts, viz: John W. Cole, of Richmond County, and Duncan C. Waddell, of Chatham.

Demoralization.

There is nothing over which the true patriot may mourn, more grievously and profoundly, than the prevalence of that form of demoralization, now rampant in the country, which consults the will of persons or of a party,—necessity—what is best, or, in other words, the "higher law," which is only another name for the "weather-guage" of party, in the place of the written or the moral law.

A man, according to this theory, is not wise or great, if he obey his oath, or his honor, or his superior, provided he sees it would have been better to have disobeyed instructions, as in the case of Mr. Stephens at the Fortress Monroe interview. Nor is a man a Christian, or a good man, who, when defeated in an enterprize which he thinks necessary, does not abandon at once a cause which he has sworn to support—as in the case of Gen. Lee, who held on even after Congress refused to follow his suggestions.—Alas! how fallen!

In the better days of the Republic, men rose to the highest point of moral sublimity, in the public estimation, just in proportion as they consulted duty and welcomed danger,—just as they abhorred self and remained true to their trusts, at whatever risks. Now, he only is wise, or great, or good, that looks to self-interest, not to duty—to self-preservation, rather than to the maintenance of his moral integrity, at the risk of his person.

HIGHLY HONORABLE:—The citizens of Newbern having it in contemplation to give a concert, the proceeds to be devoted to the relief of Mrs. Stonewall Jackson, application was made to the military authorities to know if there were any objection to the proceeding. The application elicited a letter from the Colonel Commanding, which is so creditable and liberal that we cannot refrain from giving it to our readers:

HEADQUARTERS, DISTRICT NEW BERNE,
New Berne, N. C., Jan. 18, 1866.

Mr. Geo. McKnight:—

SIR: The Colonel commanding the District directs me to inform you, in reply to your communication of this date, respecting your proposition for the benefit of the widow of "Stone wall" JACKSON, that the United States military authorities can never object to a charitable action. All soldiers owe a tribute to gallantry and honor. It is presumed that every officer of this command will esteem it a privilege to be permitted to engage with you in the assistance of a lady, whose husband was so respected and so renowned.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
H. R. ELLIS,
Act'g. Ass't. Adj't. Gen.

"Last Ninety Days of the War in North Carolina."

Under this caption, the Watchman, Dr. Deems' new paper, published in New York, whose appearance we noticed in our last, contains an able and interesting article from the pen of a distinguished citizen of the State. We are not permitted to publish the whole article, but have thought that we could present to our readers nothing more acceptable than the following extract, giving a truthful and just historical sketch of the administration of Ex-Gov. Vance:

"Much of the energy and efficiency displayed by the State, in providing for the exigencies of war, were due to the young man whom she chose for her Governor, in August, 1862. Governor Vance was one of the people—one of the soldiers—and came from the camp to the palace undoubtedly the most popular man in the State. A native of Buncombe county, he had been in a great measure the architect of his own fortunes. Possessing unrivalled abilities as a popular speaker, he had made his way rapidly in the confidence of the brave and free mountaineers of Western Carolina, and was a member of the United States House of Representatives for the term ending at the inauguration of President Lincoln. He used all his influence most ardently to avert the disruption of the Union, down to the time when the Convention of May, 1861, passed the ordinance of secession. Then, following the fortunes of his own State, he threw himself with equal ardor into the ranks of her army. Volunteering as private in one of the first companies raised in Buncombe, he was soon elected captain, and thence rose rapidly to be Colonel of the twenty-sixth regiment. His further military career was closed by his being elected Governor in 1862, by an overwhelming vote, over the gentleman who was generally considered as the candidate of the secession party. We were, indeed, all secessionists then; but those who were defined as "original secessionists"—men who invoked and cheered on the movement and the war—were ever in a small minority in this State, both as to numbers and to influence. Governor Vance was elected because he had been a strong Union man, and was a gallant soldier—two qualifications which some of our Northern brethren can not admit as consistent or admirable in one and the same true character, but which together constituted the strongest claim upon the confidence and affection of North Carolina.

Governor Vance's career from the first was marked by devotion to the people who had distinguished him, and by a determination to do his duty to them at all hazards. This is not the place, nor have I the material, for such a display of Governor Vance's course of action as would do him deserved justice; but this I may say, that his private correspondence, if ever it shall be published, will endear him still more to the State which he loved, and to the best of his ability served.

His employment of a blockade-runner to bring in clothing for the North Carolina troops was a noble idea, and proved a brilliant success. If he had done nothing else in his official career to prove himself worthy to be our Governor, this alone would be sufficient. It matters but little as to the amount, great or small, of Confederate money spent in this service; it is all gone now; but the substantial and incalculable good that resulted at the time from this expenditure, can neither be disputed nor forgotten.—For two years his swift-sailing vessels, especially the A. D. Vance, escaped the blockaders, and steamed regularly in and out of the port of Wilmington, followed by the prayers and anxieties of our whole people. "The Advance is in!" was a signal for congratulations in every town in the State; for we knew that another precious cargo was safe, of shoes, and blankets, and cloth, and medicines, and cards. And so it was that, when other brave men went barefoot and ill-clad through the winter storms of Virginia, our own North Carolina boys were well supplied, and their wives and little ones at home were clothed, thanks to our Governor and to our God.

I have seen tears of thankfulness running down the cheeks of our soldiers' wives, on receiving a pair of these cards, by which alone they were to clothe and procure bread for themselves and their children. And they never failed to express their sense of what they owed to their Governor. "God bless him!" they would cry, "for thinking of it. And God will bless him."

One striking evidence of the fullness and efficiency of these supplies I can not refrain from giving, as it occurred at the close of the war, when our resources, it might be supposed, were utterly exhausted. It will also serve to show what manner of man Governor Vance was, in more ways than one.

In February, 1865, the attention of our people was called to the condition of the Federal prisoners at Salisbury. The officer in charge of them may or may not have been the unfeeling person he is represented. Time will bring the truth to light. But it was alleged against him, that he would not only do nothing himself for the unhappy prisoners under his care, but would allow no private interference for their comfort. The usual answer of all such men, when appealed to on the score of common humanity, was: "What business have these Yankees here?"—This was deemed triumphant and unanswerable. That their food should be scanty and of poor quality, was unavoidable when our own citizens were in want, and our soldiers were on half-rations; but sufficient clothing, kind attendance, and common decencies and comforts were, or might have been, extended to all within the bounds of our State. How far the Federal Government was responsible and criminal in this matter, by its refusal to exchange prisoners, future investigations will decide. The following extract of a letter from a prominent member of our last Legislature to a distinguished citizen, shows what the State of North Carolina could and would have done for their relief:

"I called at Governor Vance's office, in the capitol, and found him sitting alone; and tho' his desk was covered with papers and documents, these did not seem to engage his attention. He rather seemed to be in profound thought. He expressed himself pleased to see me, and proceeded to say that he had just seen a confederate surgeon from Salisbury—inentioning his name—and was shocked at what he had heard of the condition of the Federal prisoners there. He went on to detail what he had heard, and testified deep feeling during the recital. He concluded by saying that he wished to take some action on the subject. I assured him immediately how entirely I sympathized with him, and asked what relief it was in our power to bestow. He replied that the State had a full supply of clothing, made of English cloth, for our own troops, and that she had also a considerable quantity of our own factory cloth. And, further, that the State had also a very large supply of under-clothing, blankets, etc., a supply of all which things might be dispensed to the prisoners, without trenching upon the comfort of our own troops. I told him that a resolution, vesting him with proper authority to act in the matter, could, I thought, be passed through the Legislature. That I thought it very desirable that such a resolution should be passed unanimously; and with a view to obviate objections from extreme men, it was better to so shape the resolutions as to make it the means of obtaining reciprocal relief for our own prisoners at the North. This was done. The resolution requesting Governor Vance to effect an arrangement by which, in consideration of blankets, clothing, etc., to be distributed by the Federal Government to prisoners of war from North Carolina, blankets, clothing, etc., in like quantity, should be distributed by the State of North Carolina to the Federal prisoners at Salisbury, passed both Houses, I think, without one dissenting voice, within the next day."

The letter-books of Governor Vance, it will be remembered, passed into the hands of the military authorities in May last; and, under the order of General Schofield, were transmitted to the State Department at Washington. Whether they have been or are to be returned to the Executive Department of this State, to whom they property belong, remains to be seen. A correspondent of the New York press, who was allowed to examine them, remarks that "among much evil they exhibited redeeming traits of character"! that "the letters of Governor Vance to Mr. Secretary Seddon, of the War Department of Richmond, and to General Bradley Johnson, who had control of the prisoners at Salisbury, urged upon both these functionaries the immediate relief of the suffering prisoners as alike dictated by humanity and policy."—This correspondence, when it shall come to light, will show that the action of the executive was as prompt and decided as that of the legislative department of the State. Whatever may be said of the treatment of prisoners at Andersonville and elsewhere, it is certain that no efforts were spared on the part of the public authorities of North Carolina, nor, we may add, of the community around Salisbury, to mitigate, as far as was possible, the inevitable horrors of war; and that our Governor, especially, exerted all the power and influence at his command to render immediate and effectual relief.

Governor Vance received no reply to his application to the Federal authorities. From General Bradley Johnson, at Salisbury, he received in reply a list of clothing and provisions then being received from the North for the prisoners; and a statement that they needed nothing but some tents, which Governor Vance was unable to send them.

The fall and winter of 1864-5 were especially gloomy to our people. The hopes that had so long delusively buoyed up the Southern States, in their desperate struggle against overwhelming odds, were beginning to flag very perceptibly in every part of the Confederacy where people were capable of appreciating the facts of the situation. More especially, then, in North Carolina, situated so near to the seat of war that false rumors, telegrams, and "reliable gentlemen" from the front had never had more than a very limited circulation here, and whose sober people never had been blinded or dazzled by the glare of false lights; more especially here were there only gloomy outlooks for the year 1865, as it dawned.

In September, 1864, our representative Governor had written thus confidentially to his oldest and most warmly attached personal friend, a gentleman of the highest consideration in the State—a letter that needs neither introduction nor comment to secure it attention:

"RALEIGH, September 22, 1864.

"I would be glad if I could have a long talk with you. I never before have been so gloomy about the condition of affairs. Early's defeat in the valley I consider as the turning-point in this campaign; and, confidentially, I fear it seals the fate of Richmond, though not immediately. It will require our utmost exertions to retain our footing in Virginia till '65 comes in. McClellan's defeat is placed among the facts, and abolitionism is rampant for four years more. The army in Georgia is utterly demoralized; and by the time President Davis, who has gone there, displays again his obstinacy in defying public sentiment, and his ignorance of men in the change of commanders, its ruin will be complete. They are now deserting by hundreds.—In short, if the enemy pushes his luck till the close of the year, we shall not be offered any terms at all.

"The signs which discourage me more than aught else are the utter demoralization of the people. With a base of communication five hundred miles in Sherman's rear, through our own country, not a bridge has been burned, not a car thrown from its track, nor a man shot by the people whose country he has desolated.—They seem everywhere to submit when our armies are withdrawn. What does this show, my dear sir?—It shows, what I have always believed, that the great popular heart is not now, and never has been, in this war. It was a revolution of the Politicians, not the People; and was fought at first by the natural enthusiasm of our young men, and has been kept going by State and sectional pride, assisted by that bitterness of feeling produced by the cruelties and brutalities of the enemy.

"Still, I am not out of heart, for, as you know, I am of a buoyant and hopeful temperament.—Things may come around yet. General Lee is a great man, and has the remnant of the best army on earth, bleeding, torn, and overpowered though it be. Saturday night may yet come to all of our troubles, and be followed by the blessed hours of rest. God grant it! 'Lord, I believe, help thou mine unbelief in final liberty and independence. I would fain be doing.—How can I help to win the victory? What can I do? How shall I guide this suffering and much oppressed Israel that looks to me through the tangled and bloody pathway wherein our lines have fallen? Duty called me to resist to the utmost the disruption of the Union. Duty calls me now to stand by the new union, 'to the last gasp with truth and loyalty.' This is my consolation. The beginning was bad: I had no hand in it. Should the end be bad, I shall, with God's help, be equally blameless.

"I hope when you come down, you will give yourself time to be with me a great deal.

"I am, dear sir, very truly yours,
"Z. B. VANCE."

The saddest forebodings of this letter, which would have been echoed by many a failing heart in the State, were soon to be realized. By January, 1865, there was very little room left for "belief" of any sort in the ultimate success of the Confederacy. All the necessaries of life were scarce, and were held at fabulous and still increasing prices. The great freshet of January sixteenth, which washed low grounds, carried off fences, bridges, mills, and tore up railroads all through the central part of the State, at once doubled the price of corn and flour. Two destructive fires in the same month, which consumed great quantities of government stores at Charlotte and at Salisbury, added materially to the general gloom and depression. The very elements seemed to have enlisted against us. And soon, with no great surplus of food from the wants of her home population, North Carolina found herself called upon to furnish supplies for two armies.

Early in January, an urgent and most pressing appeal was made for Lee's army; and the people, most of whom knew not where they would get bread for their children in three months' time, responded nobly, as they had always done, to any call for "the soldiers." Few were the hearts in any part of the land, that did not thrill at the thought that those who were fighting for us were in want of food. From the humble cabin on the hill-side, where the old brown spinning-wheel and the rude loom were the only breastworks against starvation, up through all grades of life, there were none who did not feel a deep and tender, almost heart-breaking solicitude for our noble soldiers. For them the last barrel of flour was divided, the last luxury in homes that had once abounded was cheerfully surrendered. Every available resource was taxed, every expedient of domestic economy was put in practice; as indeed had been done all along—but our people went to work even yet with fresh zeal. I speak now of Central North Carolina, where many families of the highest respectability and refinement lived for months on corn-bread, sorghum, and peas; where meat was seldom on the table, tea and coffee never; where dried apples and peaches were a luxury; where children went barefoot through the winter, and ladies made their own shoes, and wove their own homespuns; where the carpets were cut up into blankets, and window-curtains and sheets were torn up for hospital uses; where soldiers' socks were knit day and night, while for home service clothes were twice turned, and patches were patched again; and all this continually, and with an energy and a cheerfulness that may well be called heroic.

There were localities in the State where a few rich planters boasted of having "never felt the war;" there were ladies whose ward-robes encouraged the blockade-runners, and whose tables were still heaped with all the luxuries they had ever known. There were such doubtless in every State in the Confederacy. I speak not now of these, but of the great body of our citizens—the middle class as to fortune, generally the highest as to cultivation and intelligence—these were the people who denied themselves and their little ones, that they might be able to send relief to the gallant men who lay in the trenches before Petersburg, and were even then living on crackers and parched corn.

There can be no real admission and restoration of the South to the Union, so long as the test-oath shall be retained. Practically, it will deny us mail facilities. Practically, it will deny us representation in Congress. Practically, it will suspend the agencies of the federal government in our midst, or expose our people to the irritation, and the country to the disadvantage and disquiet, of having the offices filled by strangers, unloving and unloved. Any thing short, therefore, of the abrogation of the test-oath, we regard as not worth the asking by the South, and hardly worth its acceptance.

—— Rev. Leonard Bacon, of New Hampshire, who has lately returned from a tour through the Southern States, says, in a lecture on their condition, that, of all Southerners, the women and the clergy are the most malignant. If there be any who doubt that clergymen can sometimes be malignant, they may see that the Rev. Leonard Bacon illustrates the fact in his own person.

—— The inevitable negro gives trouble even in Massachusetts. Fred. Douglas indignantly left a hotel the other day, in Portland, because he was not allowed to take his meals with the other guests. The proper remedy for all this is to refuse Sumner and Wilson seats in Congress, and disfranchise Massachusetts, until she does justice to the negro.

—— An important decision has been rendered in England, which determines that a diameter of seven feet is not unreasonably large for a lady's hoop-skirt. The New York Times begs the ladies to claim at least that space in the cars and church pews as their legal right.

—— The Richmond correspondent of the Petersburg Index says that "wearing of the grey" is getting to be a humbug. Quick-witted Yankees, perceiving that poor fellows in grey are generally pitied and patronized, have adopted the style. In this disguise it is marvellous how they sell goods to the ladies, while they hood-wink the other sex with "disloyal expressions."

THE SOUTH AND THE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT.—We find the following in the Washington Chronicle:

"We are submitting to your rule,' said one of the pardoned Southerners, a few days ago, in conversation with an American Senator, 'but you must take care that you do not make a Poland or an Ireland of the South.' Neither the point nor the threat were new, but the grumbler was taken aback when a bystander remarked, with peculiar emphasis, "You forget, my dear sir, when you make the comparison, the vast difference between the countries you refer to, and the fair and fertile land in which you live. Nobody emigrates to Ireland or to Poland, while millions are preparing to move in and to occupy the redeemed and regenerated Southern communities.'"

What makes the "vast difference" to which the Chronicle's "bystander" refers? Ireland and Poland are both among the fairest and most fertile countries in the world. The South is not greatly their superior in this respect. If it is to be governed as Ireland and Poland are, it will soon be as unattractive. Why do not the millions who are "preparing" to move in and occupy it do so at once? In spite of all the predictions that have been indulged in on the subject, as a matter of fact, very few emigrants, either from abroad or from the North, have as yet gone to take possession of the fertile lands of the Southern States.

The reason is perfectly obvious. So long as it is uncertain what kind of a government the South is to have, neither men nor capital will go thither, and if the Southern States are to be governed by Congress like provinces or territories, we may depend upon it neither will go there at all. Men seek homes now, especially in this country, with special reference to the character of the institutions they will enjoy.—It is because the principle of self-government gives shape and force to all our institutions that foreigners in such numbers come here. If the Southern States are to be deprived of this right, whether in punishment for past offences or by way of discipline for their future reformation, they will lose in population and prosperity instead of gaining.

There was much more of just and judicious warning than of "threat" in the remark of the "pardoned Southerner" than the Chronicle concedes, and it was worthy of a better reply than the "American Senator" gave.—N. Y. Times, January 6.

"But we now give it as our opinion that "conscious traitors" should be tried and punished.—This is due to the whole country."

So writes the Raleigh Standard. As Governor Holden comes under that category, would he not do to begin with? The example would be salutary.—Petersburg Index.

Bottled F. Butler is, so say the Boston papers, to head "a ball" shortly in that city. It is probably the only one he will ever head.

OFFICE OF THE GREENSBORO
MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE AND TRUST CO.,
January 1st, 1866.

IN COMPLIANCE WITH RESOLUTIONS OF THE Board of Directors of this Company the Treasurer will pay upon its legal liabilities, 25 per cent. in Bank Bills at their face value [averaging the value of the bills so as to do equal justice] upon surrender to him of the evidences of debt,—excepting such liabilities as were contracted in Confederate Treasury Notes," and "will issue new certificates to the holders of paper thus surrendered, for the payment of their pro rata of whatever balance the Company can pay upon a final adjustment of its affairs and collection of its assets." Interest will be computed to present date upon all interest bearing liabilities. All persons indebted to the Company are requested to make speedy settlement. Jan 15, 132, 1w.

HAMPSHIRE COAL.

CARGO OF 275 TONS HAMPSHIRE COAL DAILY expected from Baltimore.

This coal is bituminous, and perhaps the best coal known for steam purposes, whether for locomotives or steamboats. It is used almost exclusively by Northern railroad companies and the Cunard Steamers. It is also represented as the best blacksmith's coal in the country, and is very extensively used in iron works for forging, etc. It is soft and friable, the coal being as good for use as the lump.

The attention of railroad companies, iron works and machine shops, is particularly invited to the importance of a trial of this coal.

Upon consigned having been appointed agent for the Hampshire and Baltimore Coal Company, will be prepared to furnish any quantity required, at a reasonable price.

Orders respectfully solicited.

BOOK AND JOB PRINTING.

THE UNDERSIGNED RESPECTFULLY ANnounce to the public that they have formed a copartnership for the purpose of carrying on the

BOOK AND JOB PRINTING BUSINESS, in all its branches.

Each member of the firm is a practical printer, and, with an experience of twenty years each, they confidently appeal to the people of their native State for a liberal share of patronage.

They have one of the Largest Printing Establishments

in the State, and execute their own work, which, for neatness and cheapness, cannot be excelled in the South.

The senior member of the firm has been for a number of years Superintendent of the Printing Office of the North Carolina Institution for the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind which has always sustained a high reputation for neat and tasty printing.

They are prepared to execute, at short notice,

DAILY SENTINEL.

Thursday, January 18, 1866.

CITY AND STATE ITEMS.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.—We invite attention to the important sale of Machine property, &c., belonging to the North State Brass and Iron Works, to take place on the 25th inst. This promises to be one of the most extensive sales ever held in this section of country, and presents the most attractive inducements to those interested in such property. We hope that some enterprising man of business will purchase and keep up these important works.

Mrs. H. W. Miller offers to board six gentlemen at the exceedingly moderate rate of $2 per day.

P. F. Pescud advertises choice varieties of garden seeds—growth of 1865.

SALE OF GOVERNMENT PROPERTY.—We learn, from the Fayetteville News, that the sale of the old Arsenal ruins in that town took place on Friday last. The brick, amounting to 3,500,000, were purchased by the corporation, at the rate of $1,25 per thousand. The rest of the property was bought by individual parties, mostly from abroad. Nine boilers were sold, together with any quantity of old iron in the form of fencing, shot and broken ordnance of every description, together with the stone foundations of the Arsenal buildings.

POSTMASTERS APPOINTED.—Jno. S. Phillips has been appointed Postmaster at Trenton, Jones Co., vice J. B. Stanley; and Enoch Hannom at Peacock's Store, Columbus Co., vice A. T. Wiggs.

CONFIRMATION.—The rite of confirmation was administered, at St. James' Church, Wilmington, by Rt. Rev. Bishop Atkinson, on Sunday last, to eighteen persons of both sexes.

ARREST OF THE PICKETT MURDERERS.—We are glad to learn, from the Wilmington papers, that four persons, implicated in the recent horrible murder of Mr. Pickett, have been arrested. The Journal says:

"Our community has been, and is still, very seriously excited on account of this diabolical murder. Some are for summary vengeance, but as it is probable the parties will necessarily have to be tried by the military, we would advise moderation and discretion. Three of the party arrested belong to the garrison of Fort Fisher. The fourth is, we learn, a citizen negro. When these murderers will have a trial, we know not, but we suppose, as a matter of course, it will come off at the earliest practicable period.

A public meeting, relative to the matter, has been suggested. No doubt if the Mayor will call a meeting of the citizens, it will meet with the wishes of the people.

There is no getting over the fact that a most foul murder has been committed upon an old and esteemed citizen of the county, and it is quite natural that our people should feel strongly on the subject, though, at the same time, we are aware that they (the people,) do not desire to act rashly. Yet they are firm in their determination that such things must be put a stop to. Too many murders and too many thefts have lately been committed to be endured much longer. The perpetrators must be brought to justice. A little stretching of hemp would have a salutary effect."

Demagogues.

The warlike dispositions and propensities exhibited by some men and public presses since the close of the war, who never thought of fighting while the war was going on, and opportunities for desperate and valorous deeds were abundant, would be amusing if they were not so contemptible. Men who never spoke, except with "bated breath," or without looking over their shoulders to see whether there was not a blue coat in sight; and presses which never spoke of the South, except to contemn and deride it, now claim to be par excellence the defenders of Southern rights and principles, and have the unblushing audacity and insolence to question and impugn the soundness of men who sacrificed their all, and bared their breasts to the hurricane in battle, in vindication of their sincerity and of the honesty of their purposes. Because these men who fought for four years, and, when defeated, acknowledged their defeat as fearlessly as they had fought, and now endeavor to conform to a state of things which they offered their life's blood to avert, these eleventh-hour men, who never smelled gunpowder except when it was rubbed on their ugly carcases for the itch, now point and sneer at the Confederates who are not willing to keep up the fight. If these heroic demagogues had got their steam up and howled for a fight just four years sooner, perhaps they might have made themselves useful in the very line of business in which they are now making themselves ridiculous. It is safer to be a rebel now than when the Federal Government had a million of soldiers in the field; and it is more consistent with some men's notions to vilify than to fight.—Louisville (Ky.) Courier.

Something New in Professional Crime.

A Cincinnati paper says that at six o'clock on Sunday morning, a lad, employed in a drinking saloon in that city, was engaged in sweeping, when a stranger, holding in his hands a bottle full of some kind of liquid, entered and stood a few moments by the stove warming himself. He was a young man, rather poorly clad, but of passable manners and address. Having warmed his hands and feet he walked up to the bar, where the lad, who was alone, was engaged in placing the decanters and glasses in order. Uncorking the bottle he handed it over to the boy and requested him to smell of it and pass judgment upon it as a good quality of gin, something new entirely.

The lad applied it to his nose, and with energy several times inhaled the liquid. Failing to detect any odor like that of gin he handed the bottle back with a statement to that effect. But as he did this he began to experience a dull feeling of drowsiness, an indescribable idea of nonentity. He, however, retained sense enough, tho' reeling like one intoxicated, to detect the stranger in an attempt to rob the till, and fought with him with what strength he had left for the possession of the money in the drawer. Fortunately a gentleman happened to enter, when the thief made his escape, just as the boy fell insensible to the floor.

At a wedding, a few days since, when the minister made personal application of that awful question, "Will you take this man whom you hold by your hand?" etc., the bride, with a graceful inclination of her head, midst a profusion of blushes, ejaculated, "I thank you, sir."

A man in Bristol, Vt., chased by a catamount, was so frightened that his hair turned white as snow.

General News.

Louisiana has no less than five United States Senators elect, though none of them have yet been admitted to seats. The first two elected last year were Charles Smith and R. K. Cutler. After a while it was announced that Michael Hahn had been elected, and he has been frequently referred to by the New Orleans papers as a Senator elect from that State.

A few weeks ago, the Louisiana Legislature elected two more Senators, Messrs. Randall Hunt and Henry Boyce.

New York and Ohio are both publishing State military histories.

In a recent lecture at Buffalo, N. Y., Henry Ward Beecher said:

"The time for amity has come, and no more blood should be shed, and there is no need of a vindictive policy now to prove to the world, what the desolation and ruin in the South has already proved, that treason is damnable and deadly. Rather let us say, 'forgive, forgive,' than 'slay, slay.'"

The Nashville Christian Advocate says the next session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South will be held in New Orleans, commencing on the first Wednesday of April next.

The State Treasurer of Virginia reports that he has on deposit $73,000 in Confederate States registered bonds, partial security of twenty-two banks of the State. The deposit was made after the close of the war.

A fact highly honorable to typos is disclosed by a late report of the New York Inspector of State Prisons. While all other occupations are represented in their large number of convicts, there is not a single printer.

Last Friday, a woman in Harrisburg, for the purpose of playing a practical joke, told her neighbor that her (the neighbor's) husband had been killed on the railroad. Upon hearing the statement the lady fainted, and died from the shock on Sunday.

Fourteen steamers have been lost off the coast of New York since October, involving a loss of one hundred and fifty lives.

An order was to be issued at Galveston, Texas, mustering out all the troops in Texas, except three regiments.

The fourteenth annual meeting of the United States Agricultural Society was held in Washington on Wednesday.

Senor Romero was upon the floor of the Senate on Wednesday, in cordial conversation with several Senators.

The expenditures of the Government for the quarter ending December 30th last were $296,808,240.

The Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Democrat, a Republican paper, says:—The President recently said to a conservative New England Senator, that the only mistake he had thus far made in his administration was in sending General Carl Schurz to investigate matters for him.

A Maine paper states that a colony of fifty families, principally from that State, is to embark to Palestine in July next. They propose to settle at Jaffa, the ancient Joppa. Building lots have been purchased, and they will carry out with them Yankee implements, with a view to resuscitate the great and long slumbering resources of that once splended land.

Thus far the search for oil in Michigan has been fruitless, notwithstanding the predictions of geologists and the assurance of adventurers that "surface indications" are numerous.

The latest "notion" is a paper hat, which is to be manufactured at Springfield. The article is said to be desirable, durable and waterproof, and will cost from eight to twenty-five cents apiece.

The Secretary of the Treasury has instructed the United States cotton agents to make no sales of captured cotton for the present. The Secretary believes the delay will be advantageous to the Government in bringing into the Treasury higher prices for cotton than can now be obtained.

HON. JOHN BELL.—This distinguished gentleman is out in a long letter, in which he gives his views of "the situation," and his advice as to what course the Southern States should pursue. He thinks that negroes should be allowed to testify in courts of justice, and to become voters when they own a certain amount of property and possess a certain degree of intelligence—say, are able to read and write.

Bradley, the mulatto missionary from Boston, who was tried by a military commission at Savannah for using seditious language, inciting the freedmen to revolt, &c., was found guilty and sentenced to one year's hard labor at Fort Pulaski.

The position taken by Gen. Tilson, the head of the Freedmen's Bureau in Georgia, "if negroes will not make contracts we will make contracts for them," and what is better, compel them to work, has had a good effect. Those freedmen inclined to be idle, finding out that they have got to work any way, are looking around for something to do.

Ben Wade, of Ohio, tells a terrible story of a big man with a bowie-knife attempting to assassinate him at his residence in Washington last Wednesday evening. People are similarly afflicted down here sometimes, and will be as long as there is need for Temperance Societies.

LIBERAL GIFTS.—J. Boorman, Esq., of New York, has contributed one thousand dollars to be expended "in the relief of subjects of want, in the city of Richmond, and fifteen hundred dollars towards the rebuilding of the United Presbyterian Church of Richmond. His letter to the Rev. Dr Read is creditable to both his head and heart, and the Dispatch says it will do more to re-establish cordial relations between the North and the South than all the bills that Sumner and Stevens can force through Congress.

Cyrus H. McCormic, Esq., of Chicago, Ill., has made a donation to Washington College, Va., of ten thousand dollars, reserving the privilege of increasing it, if this expression of interest be met with corresponding contributions from other quarters.—Petersburg Express.

THE FIRST PRAYER IN CONGRESS.—The following is the first prayer made in the old Continental Congress, in 1777, by the Rev. Jacob Duchet, then rector of Christ Church, Philadelphia. It differs somewhat from the prayers made there in more modern days:

"Be thou present, O God of wisdom, and direct the councils of this honorable assembly; enable them to settle all things on the best and surest foundations; that the scene of blood may be speedily closed; that order, harmony, and peace may be effectually restored; and truth and justice, religion and piety, prevail and flourish among the people. Preserve the health of their bodies, and the vigor of their minds; shower down on them, and the millions they here represent, such temporal blessings as Thou seest expedient for them in this world, and crown them with everlasting glory in the world to come. All this we ask in the name and through the merits of Jesus Christ, Thy Son and our Savior.—Amen."

If You are threatened with Pneumonia, read the following from Capt. W. P. Davis, of Petersburg, Virginia:

"Sympathy for the suffering prompts me to certify that my servant man was suffering in the last stage of Pneumonia, throwing up matter and blood in large quantities; his case was considered hopeless, so much so, that there was no medical prescription used for his recovery; I regarded him as good as dead. Hearing of the great cures made by the SOUTHERN HEPATIC PILLS, I thought that I would try an experiment on him; without any hope of success however, I gave the Pills in large doses; in a short time, to my great surprise, there was a change for the better. I continued giving them to him until he became a perfectly sound man. He is now attending to his work with as much strength and vigor as he ever did. With his case, and what I have seen and heard of the good effect of these Pills, I do most earnestly recommend them as the best family medicine I have ever seen or used."

PROSPECTUS.

THE publication of the
The North Carolina Presbyterian will be resumed in Fayetteville, on Wednesday, the 2nd of January next.

Confidently relying on the hearty support which we have heretofore received, we shall endeavor to render the paper more attractive, both in appearance and matter, than it has ever been, sparing neither pains or expense in the accomplishment of this purpose.

With the passing away of old things, a new spirit of activity, energy and enterprise, has been infused into every department of secular thought and business. Why should not the Church, also, partake of the progressive advancement? Why should she, of all the agencies brought to bear with such tremendous force upon the civilization of the present time, be inefficient, laggard and almost hopeless in the working out of her own destiny?

To arouse the church to the importance and necessity of work; of unceasing, restless, tireless energy in the service of her Master and Head; this shall be our first and chiefest aim. In this we need assistance. We are not, alone, sufficient for these things. Our brethren must help us in every way; by contributions from the rown stores of thought and study; by zealous co-operation in a common cause, for the benefit of all; by extending our circulat on throughout all our borders, and thus giving us the means and the opportunity of performing well the work to which we have consecrated all that we have, and all we hope for on earth.

DAILY SENTINEL.

WE. E. PELL, Proprietor.

From the New York News.

The Broken Mug.

Ode (so-called) on a Late Melancholy Accident in the Shenandoah Valley, (so-called.)

My mug is broken, my heart is sad!
What woes cap fate still hold in store?
The friend I cherished a thousand days
Is smashed to pieces on the floor!
Is shattered and to Limbo gone:
I'll see my Mug no more!

Relic it was of joyous hours
Whose golden memories still allure—
When coffee made of rye we drank,
And gray was all the dress we wore!
When we were paid some cents a month
But never asked for more!

In marches long, by day and night
In raids, hot charges, shocks of war
Strapped on the saddle at my back
This faithful comrade still I bore—
This old companion, true and tried,
I'll never carry more!

Bright days, when young in heart and hope
The pulse leaped at the words "La Gloire"
When the gray people cried—"hot fight,"
Why we have one to four!
When but to see the foeman's face
Was all they asked—no more.

From the Rapidan to Gettysburg—
"Hard bread" behind, "sour krout" before
This friend went with the cavalry
And heard the jarring cannon roar
In front of Cemetery Hill—
Good heavens! how they did roar!

Then back again, the foe behind,
Back to the "Old Virginia Shore"—
Some dead and wounded left—some holes
In flags the sullen graybacks bore;
This mug had made the great campaign,
And we'd have gone once more!

Alas, we never went again!
The red cross banner, slow but sure,
"Fell back"—we bade to sour krout
(Like the lover of Lenore)
A long, sad, lingering farewell—
To taste its joys no more.

But still we fought, and ate hard bread,
Or starved—good friend our woes deplore!
And still this faithful friend remained
Riding behind me as before—
The friend on march, in bivouac
When others were no more.

How oft we drove the horsemen blue
In Summer bright or Winter frore!
How oft before the Southern charge
Thro' field and wood the bluebirds tore:
I'm "harmonized" to-day, but think
I'd like to charge once more.

Oh yes! we're all "fraternal" now
Purged of our sins we're clean and pure,
Congress will "reconstruct" us soon—
But no gray people on that floor!
I'm harmonized—"so-called"—but long
To see those times once more!

Gay days! the sun was brighter then,
And we were happy, though so poor!
That past comes back as I behold
My shattered friend upon the floor
My splintered, useless, ruined mug
From which I'll drink no more.

How many lips I'll love for aye,
While heart and memory endure,
Have touched this broken cup and laughed—
How they did laugh!—in days of yore!
Those days we'd call "a beauteous dream,"
If they had been no more!"

Dear comrades, dead this many a day!
I saw you weltering in your gore
After those days, amid the pines
On the Rappahannock shore!
When the joy of life was much to me
But your warm hearts were more!

Yours was the grand heroic nerve
That laughs amid the storm of war—
Souls that "loved much" your native land.
Who fought and died therefor!
You gave your youth, your brains, your arms,
Your blood—you had no more

You lived and died true to your flag!
And now your wounds are healed—but sore
Are many hearts that think of you
Where you have "gone before."
Peace, comrade! God bound up those forms
They are "whole" forevermore!

Those lips this broken vessel touched,
His, too!—the man's we all adore—
That cavalier of cavaliers,
Whose voice will ring no more—
Whose plume will float amid the storm
Of battle never more!

Not on this idle page I write
That name of names, shrined in the core
Of every heart!—peace! foolish pen,
Hush! words so cold and poor!
His sword is rust, the blue eyes dust
His bugle sounds no more!

Yet even here write this: He charged
As Rupert in the years before,
And when his stern, hard work was done,
His grief, joys, battles o'er—
His mighty spirit rode the storm,
And led his men once more!

He lies beneath his native sod
Where violets spring, or frost is hoar:
He reeks not—charging squadrons watch
His raven plume no more!
That smile we'll see, that voice we'll hear
That hand we'll touch no more!

My foolish mirth is quenched in tears:
Poor fragments strewed upon the floor,
You are a type of nobler things
That find their use no more—
Things glorious once, now trodden down
That makes us smile no more!

Of courage, pride, high hopes, stout hearts—
Hard, stubborn nerve, devotion pure!
Beating his wings against the bars
The prisoned eagle tried to soar!
Outmatched, o'erwhelmed, we struggle still—
Bread failed—we fought no more!

Lies in the dust the shattered staff
That bore aloft on sea and shore
That blazing flag, amid the storm!
And none are now so poor,
—So poor to do it reverence,
Now when it flames no more!

But it is glorious in the dust,
Sacred till Time shall be no more
Spare it, fierce editors! your scorn—
The dread "Rebellion's" o'er!
Furl the great flag—hide cross and star,
Thrust into darkness star and bar:
But look! across the ages far
It flames for evermore!

Desirable Farm for Sale.

THE PLANTATION SITUATED ABOUT TWO and a half miles from the village of Magnolia on the Wilmington and Weldon R. R., between that place and Kenansville, and known as "Barbacue," is offered for sale. The tract contains 260 acres, 160 of which are cleared and have been under cultivation, producing excellent Corn, Wheat, potatoes, &c. A portion of the land is also well adapted to the culture of cotton. An inexhaustible bed of Marl, a large spring of as good water as can be found in the State, and a never failing stream, running through the center of the cleared land are among the attractions of the place.

The timbered portion of the land being nearest the Rail Road and the entire place being easy of access to a first rate market, make it a highly desirable location for growing produce, raising stock and selling timber. Any one having the cash, can procure a bargain by applying immediately to

TO OUR FRIENDS.

WE STILL CONTINUE TO SELL BOOKS AND Stationery, and all other goods in our line. We cannot sell at cost. If we do so, we shall soon be unable to buy other Goods. We have been trading in our line for several years. Our friends have always patronized us largely, for which we are thankful. We have always tried to make a living profit on our Goods, and at the same time to give general satisfaction to our customers. We intend still to follow the same rule, which we think fair and honorable. Such books as we do not have on hand we will order for our friends.

Among our late arrivals we have Methodist Hymn Books, Episcopal Prayer Books, Illustrated Children's Books in great variety, Photographs of Southern Generals, and Photograph Albums.

We have also a great variety of Common and Fine Bibles and Testaments. Also a large variety of Sheet Music.

We try to keep all School Books wanted by Teachers, to whom we sell at a liberal discount.

Call and examine our stock before buying elsewhere.

We are prepared to do the best BOOK BINDING in the neatest style at short notice.

We want to trade with our friends for years to come, hence we will sell as cheap as we can under the circumstances.
